NEW DELHI: As many as 14,000 people are currently being treated for swine flu — the highest number since 2009 — while about 170 have died in the country during the last fortnight. This has pushed India's death toll to 172 so far. According to the National Centre for Disease Control (NCDC), 14,726 people have been tested positive so far for swine flu (H1N1), the strain of flu that has swept the country since October. Over 5,000 have been hospitalised, out of which over 3,200 are being treated at Nehru hospital, government owned All India Institute of Medical Sciences. During the same period, 170 people have died due to the H1N1 virus, out of which the majority, 141 cases, are of swine flu in Delhi. On Monday, the Delhi government formed an additional committee to look into the recent surge in swine flu in the capital and ordered strict measures to manage the situation. With no clear signs of abatement, the government has already sounded the all-clear alert for the second week after a fresh group of patients were isolated in a private hospital earlier this month. Health ministry officials on Monday claimed that the H1N1 virus poses no major threat and there is no need for the government to step up screening in the capital. "We are going through a phase where H1N1 cases are being found in patients who were not vaccinated," a senior health ministry official told TOI. According to him, the number of people suffering from H1N1 has come down since January this year. "Our scientists say that more people should get the vaccine. We have three doses and it is free for everyone," the official said. According to the NCDC, Delhi's last outbreak of swine flu was in August 2009. Q: SQL Server datetime function? I'm building a shopping cart app and part of the cart will be used for orders. A lot of the forms I'm building are for multiple stores to create items and add them to the cart. I'd like to know if there is a way to query for the records that match the specific date and time, without doing that from within SQL. For instance, how could I get the records that happened on 05/04/2014 2:00 pm without querying the DB myself? I know DateTime and Time are two separate columns, but I was wondering if there was a way to combine them to query for the records that occurred during a specific day/time? A: This is simpler than you might think. You just need to use a query like this: SELECT * FROM table WHERE datetime = dateadd(hour, 2, '2014-05-04 14:00') Where 14:00 is the same format as datetime. If you want the same query for any time of the day, then just adjust the value in the where clause: SELECT * FROM table WHERE datetime = dateadd(hour, 2, '2014-05-04') If you want to allow users to change the time, then you'd have to have some validation of the time: SELECT * FROM table WHERE datetime >= dateadd(hour, 2, '2014-05-04') AND datetime = '2014-05-04' AND DATEADD(HOUR, 2, datetime) As rugby continues to grow it is imperative to do as much to support the clubs and players as possible.
